5. Invited Guest: Amy Quinn, Deputy Mayor of Asbury Park

Asbury Park is governed within the Faulkner Act under the Council-Manager form of government. Asbury Park chose this form of government based on the final report by their Charter Study Commission in 2013 since it retained a desired aspect of their local government for nonpartisan elections while allowing for the mayor to be elected directly and granting voters the right for initiative and referendum. The mayor, who is part of the Council, is elected directly by voters along with the other Council members on a staggered basis in nonpartisan elections.

6. Invited Guest: Fred Tagliarini, Mayor of Aberdeen

Aberdeen Township is governed within the Faulkner Act under the Council-Manager form of government. This form of local government was implemented in 1990 based on voting on a direct petition by Aberdeen's citizens to change from the traditional Township Committee form of government which had been in force since 1857. The mayor, who is part of the Council, is elected directly by voters along with the other Council members on a staggered basis in partisan elections.
